But taken as a whole, the work of the Summary Court is not, one would fancy, sufficient to afford the judge more than two days' work (in Court and out of it) in the course of a jout, nor did he do so, week. It is very different in the Supreme Court. Just at the present moment the public hears of some half-dozen heavy cases either pending or very recently decided before the Chier-Justice, but it perhaps scarcely fair to take the last month's business as a critorion, as it has been unusually heavy. But one knows how often the Court is engaged in listening to, and taking part in long and laborious arguments, and in noting evidence of great length, in -civil and in criminal jurisdiction, at Common Law, in Chancery, in Bankrupter, in Admiralty, and so on. But the public does not hear of one half of the labour which falls to the lot of the CHIEF-JUSTICE. A large proportion is transacted in Chambers with closed of practice in all probability arise there. Watty is a Cavalry officer, and all our readers are sure to spot him without our saying anything further! Well, this Captain Watty is a good fellow enough, but very touchy seemingly, and if he has a sore point, it lies in his beels, of which (the spurs especially) he is as proud as a young fighting cock. Gentle eader, the next time you see Watty look at the back of his "poor feet," and tenderly solidit On SHANGHAL .-him concerning their welfare! But this is only a mild hint; let us pass on.

Captain Watty received the invitation and * really it was too much for him. So he sat himself down, and wrote in high dudgeon, declining the invitation on account of his spurs. Leave his apura behind indeed !-these ornaments of biaself and insignia of his profession!-nev-arrh! O ne-varrh! So he wrote saying that he was unable to accept Mrs. - 's kind invitation, because spurs were a part of his dress, and these she had requested him to leave at home. Captain Watty also added, with admirable candour, that he regret Chinese Insurance Company. $215 per share ted he could not attend the ball in plain clothes, us be understood the Goveror and Commander-

We need hardly remark Captain Watty has raised one of the prettiest sughs that ever echoed in Madras. He was not singled out in any way as the man who should spare Mrs. s canvas floor, and the dresses of the ladies present at the ball. Field Officers and Surgeons are entitled to wear apura, but every one of those invited quite understoood the meaning of the notice in the invitation. But it was reserved for the gallant Watty alone to exhibit a little show of temper and bad taste—the reason

ALL HANDS BELOW. A good story is told of a parrot who had always lived on board of a ship, but who escaped at one of the Southern ports and took refuge in a church. Soon after, the congregation assembled, and the minister began preaching to them in his earnest fashion, saying there was no virtue in them, that everyone of them would go to hell unless they speedily repented. Just as he spoke the sentence, up spoke the parrot from its hid-

"All hands below!" To say that "all hands" were startled would be a mild way of putting it. The peculiar voice and unknown source had more effect on them than the parson's voice ever had. He waited a moment, and then, a shade or two paler, he repeated the warning. "All hands below!" again rang out from somewhere.

The preacher started from his pulpit and looked auxiously around, inquiring if any body had spoken.

"All hands below!" was the reply, at which the entire-panic-stricken congregation got up. doors, the preacher trying his best to be the first, and during the time the mischievous bird kept up his yelling: "All hands below!"

There was an old woman there who was lame, and could not get out so fast as the rest, and in a short time she was left entirely alone. Just as she was about to hobble out. the parrot flew down, and, alighting on her shoulder, again velled in her ear:

" All bands below!" "No, Mister Devil!" shricked the old woman, "you can't mean me. I go to the other church across the way."-New Orleans Christian Advocate.
